“Your career depends upon your skills and your abilities”, said Mrs. Bryony Roughton, “that means if you have a skill of thinking out and write stories, that may lead to your career” she added. She had visited our school on the 2nd of August and she was from the film industry and she came along with the people from SABC. All this started from fate, skills, interest and ability of doing something out of your best! Tiisetso Mokoena wrote a story out of his mind and beautiful of fate and interest, he and his English teacher gad planed to take the story-as they were to doing so to the film making industry where it was chosen to be the one which must be acted. From there, Tiisetso and his team were taken [the director, producer, camera person etc] for training. Now they are training their actors knowing exactly where they are going. On the 24th the filmers and the visitors will be coming back again to video-rise the story and on October, we will be watching them on a big screen somewhere in the school hall. We then hope that by the start of the next year, they will be in TV! How great is that.

The aim of industry is to help students who maybe interested in film industry to reveal their interest, Just making it easier for learners to reach their careers and the TV without any qualification although you may need one when you are in the high level in the industry and willing to proceed any further!

The industry was developed in 2007 at Port Elizabeth. How good is St Margaret SSS to have such a luck of having students video-rised and their script to be taken for TV viewing! It’s a surprise and also marvelous! Congratulation St Mama.

More than a million South Africans have managed to kick the habit - it really can be done. You just have to stick to it.

You know that precious oxygen your body needs so badly? Well, smoking robs your body of 15% of it, replacing it instead with, highly toxic carbon monoxide, which poisons your system instead of feeding it. Cigarettes are expensive and will only get costlier. Think of the things you could rather be spending that money on.

Smoking is the number - one risk factor for developing heart diseases. A 40 year old person who smokes heavily is ten times more likely to develop heart disease than someone the same age who does not smoke.

90% of smokers have the beginning stages of emphysema, a crippling condition that kills, slowly robbing you of your ability to breathe effectively. You really will leave longer if you give-up smoking. Every cigarettes is taking about five and half minutes of your life; that is nearly two hours a box.

Try as they might, the cigarette companies can not runaway from the fact that smoking is a dying habit all over the world. In America, Canada, the UK people realising their mistake and giving -up. You can join them. Most smokers worry about lung cancer. But did you know that smoking causes larynx, Oral Cavity, oesophagus, bladder, pancreatic, and kidney cancer too. ?
